Why Black John?

Notes for John "Black" NickellIII:
John Nickell was known as "Black John" from the dark skin and straight black hair he reportedly inherited from his Indian ancestors. (There seems to be little proof for this claim apart from his son "Preacher Joe" Nickell's "Indian" features, including prominent cheekbones, which are recorded in old tintypes.
Black John Nickell's descendants have long claimed he built the first cabin in what later became Morgan County, the story eventually having been published in a 1932 "History of the Nickell Family". Under the heading, "The Two Panthers", it relates how Black John Nickell found "no habitation" when he "explored the upper waters of Red River" with his eldest sons, Preacher Joe and Black Andy, ages 10 and 8. Finding a good spot for a homesite, he fashioned a lean-to for the boys and left them with their dog while he returned to Clark county for the rest of the family. On the first afternoon, two panthers came to the river to drink. The dog managed to kill each in turn (although it later died from its wounds) and so the boys were safe when their father returned the third day.
Since Preacher Joe (later founder of Morgan's first Disciples of Christ Church) had been ten years old, and was born in 1792, it was therefore supposedly possible to "fix the time for first settlement of Morgan County at 1802". (Source- Article written by John Tom Hazelrigg) by the pioneer families. It was a quarter of a century after the first settlers came that there was a population large enough to justify the formation of a new county. Early, the settlers took an active interest in the affairs of the new county of Floyd of which the entire area east of Blackwater Creek was part. Mason Williams, Peter Amyx, and Elder Daniel Williams were familiar names at the Prestonsburg courthouse.

Slowly this hinterland section of east Kentucky developed under the initiative and stamina of its early families. John Cox, a Virginian, who settled near the present Hazel Green, now Wolfe County, took two slaves to Baltimore and procured two mill stones five inches thick and 20 inches in diameter. Transporting them by means of a platform on backs of horses, he unloaded them when they got to the mountains and by using poles rolled the stones through the rugged terrain to his wilderness home. It was the first mill in a wide area. Edmund Wells installed a water mill in Licking River at West Liberty six years later. All roads now radiated from Wells' Mill, the first water-driven installation for custom grinding. It exerted a profound influence upon the area. After the formation of the county in 1823 the first justices were impressed enough with Wells' establishment to make it the focal point of the road system.

NICKELL FAMILY

AUTHOR'S NOTE

Publication of this chart has been made possible only through the kindly co-operation of a large number of people, and not without considerable expense in time and money. It is done for the purpose of putting into one record a great amount of information contained in letters, manuscripts and published volumes of other records as- sembled over a period of years by the author. Only a limited number of copies have been printed. A few copies have been placed in the principle genealogical lib- raries to aid further searchers for family history. While it contains mostly infor- mation concerning the author's particular branch of the Nickell family, painstaking care has been exerted in preserving the record of all the children of the first two or three generations that it was possible to obtain.

Search of the law reports of the various states in which the family has resided shows that no single member of' this family ever has been convicted of a Felony in America since 1745. Many members of the Nickell family in America have won distinction in their respective communities and states, but a complete record of their achievements will have to be left for publication in a larger work. It is sufficient to say that these people have been good, substantial, law-abiding folk, steadfast in their ideals of religion and citizenship for 200 years and eminently self-reliant.

For special aid in obtaining the information used herein the author wishes to give credit to the following:

General History

The earliest authentic historical record of this family or tribe is contained in the Geographica of Claudius Ptolemy, A. D. 150 (Encyclopedae Brittannica) who identifies it under the name Dairenii located in the Northernmost Fifth of Iverio (Ireland). In the Books of the Four Masters and of Fergin it is related that the Dairenoi took the name of Niochaill (Neachaill) when, in accordance with the ordinance of Brian Borume, King of Ireland, they adopted the Clan system in the Tenth century. Niochaill was a tribal hero of the Eighth century, of the blood of the tribe and its most famous Chieftain and was noted for his generosity.

The Dairenoi was one of the tribes of the Keltii (Celts) under Milesius who crossed from Europe into Ireland in the second or third century BC and conquered the Firbolghs.

The Dairenii throughout the first ten centuries of the Christian era were a numerous and powerful tribe, instrumental in placing several of their Kings on the central throne of Ireland and closely related to the largest families of the Gaelic race, inhabiting the northern and north central portions of the Island. They came in early contact with the Vikings who began to raid the Irish coast in the Ninth century. The Dairenii became closely allied with the Snadkoll band of Norse invaders, princesses of the Dairenii inter- marrying with the Chieftains of the Vikings and large bands of the Norsemen settling in the Dairenian lands. These particular bands of Vikings had established their strongholds in the Western Isles (Hebrides) North of Ireland and West of Scotland and during the next century there was a constant communication between the Dairenians of Ireland and of the Hebrides. The Dairenians from this time on became closely identified with the Norsemen, partici- pating in their voyages and joining with them in their wars against other Viking bands and against the Scots and British although we frequently find them returning to North Ireland to join their country- men in wars there. By the middle of the Tenth century the Dairen- ians, now the Clan Mac Neachaill reside principally in Skye, one of the larger islands of the Hebrides. In 1146 history records that Ottir Snackoll, a prince of the Clan MacNicaill was King of the Danes in Dublin. This illustrates how closely related the tribe had now become with the Norsemen of both Danish and Norwegian ex- traction. It is known also that the MacNicaills formed the larger part of two Viking bands which ravaged the East coast of England in the Tenth century and established colonies from which have sprung the English houses of Nicholl and Nicholson in Northumberland and Cumberland. They spread from the Isle of Skye onto the neighbor- ing coast of Argyllshire and Rosshire in Scotland and many of the name are found in those counties.

The infusion of Norse blood into the tribe was beneficial historic- ally because of the fact that many records of the tribe were pre- served in Norse Runes and Sagas in the Western Isles and in Ice- land and in the annals of the Kings of the Danes in Jutland who often fought with and against the MacNeachaills. Meanwhile re- peated return of portions of the tribe to Ireland to participate in tribal wars there has resulted in a considerable record of the Mac- Nicaills being preserved in Irish history.
With the rise of the Scottish Kings and their gradual overlord- ship of the Islands, coincident with the recession of the Viking power and the assimilation of the Vikings into the populations of Ireland, Scotland and England the MacNicaills became a Scottish Clan with the center of their power in Skye.

Andrew Nicaill's Son is the last Chief of Skye to figure in his- tory with the Norsemen. He commanded the long boat fleet of King Haakon at Largs in a battle against the Scots in 1262 A . D. It is recorded that he was of gigantic stature and that this was a char- acteristic of the MacNicaills. The Norse-Irish were defeated and Andrew Nicholson, as history refers to him, harried the coast of England in almost the last of the Viking raids. Many of the clan returned to Tyrconnell, (now Donegal) in North Ireland at this period. From this time until 1475 the Clan is known in Scottish history as the MacNicols and the families are variously called Mac- Nicol, Nicholl and Nicholson.

In the Fifteenth century the MacLeods, a kindred family of Norse-Irish origin in the Hebrides, rising rapidly under the protec- tion of the MacDonalds of the Isles, claimed the Clan Chieftaincy by reason of the marriage of the only daughter of the existing Chief to Torcil MacLeod.

Constant warfare, emigration and settlement in other lands had by this time greatly weakened the Clan in numbers. A census in 1880 in Scotland reveals 3000 families of the name but in the middle ages and up until the Sixteenth century the family must have num- bered 20,000 souls at the height of its power.

Thus, after a thousand years on Skye, of the MacNicols by 1800 only a few remained. Most of the families returned to North Ire- land during the religious persecutions of the Jacobites and in trie period 1600 to 1750 we again find them becoming a numerous clan in the original land of the Dairenii,—Ulster Ireland. Differences in spelling of the family name began to be noticed as designating members of the family who were Protestant, from those who were Catholic in Ireland, the portion which had now returned to Ireland being for the most part Protestant. Donegal and Tyrone were the counties reporting the largest number of families of Nicho s Nicols, MacNicols, and O'Niocals in the census of 1800. Several families of Nickells were recorded as living in Tyrone.

John Nickell who bought a farm in the Scotch Irish settlement of Augusta county, Virginia, in the Shenandoah valley, ra 1749, and who is the progenitor of this family in Amencawhich bears the name Nickell, reported his birthplace as County Tyrone, Ulster, Ireland. Due to impositions of heavy taxes by the English in^Ire- land in the Eighteenth century, religious persecution of Scotch Pres- byterians by the Church of Erfland and discrimination against Irish industry and agriculture by the English thousands of Ulster- men came to America between 1726 and 1776 It in Probable that John NickeU came to Virginia from Tyrone about 1746. His sons 111 settled on the Greenbriar river in what is now Monroe county W Va. vxd one of his sons and five of his grandsons settled in what is' now Morgan county, Ky., about 1800.

I, JOSEPH NICKELL, of the County of Montgomery and State of Ken- tucky, being in a low and declining state of health but sound in mind, and being of the opinion that I shall not remain here long; wishing to dispose of whatworldlysubstancelhave,DoMakeandOrdainthismyLastWilland Testament, hereby revoking all others if any there be and making this final to all Intents and Purposes:
ITEM, the 1st—After paying all my just debts, I Give And Bequeath to my daughter Elizabeth Francis, and to My Son James Nickell, all that I now have in my possession, that is I wish everything to be sold on a credit of twelve months and after said sale for Elizabeth Francis to have one equal half of all, in her full and free possession to do and dispose of as she may think proper; And the other half, my wish is that Jacob Stewart and William Bar- row take in hand for him—James, and act as his guardian to dispose of as they may think advisableforhitbenefit. Mywish isthat they would usethe interestofthemoneytohiteducation,andafterhiscomingofproperageto put him to some good mechanical business that they may choose.
My Reason for Doing as I have done with what I now have it because that I have given a full share of what I had. a Long time Previous to This Time, to the rest of my children. And my daughter Betsy having been with me and for her kind attention to me I think this even will never make her equal to the others. And my little ton James I have never given anything. So I think I have made as equal a division as I could.

ROWLEY-MARSH ALL-ELLINGTON-FUCATE HAMILTON Cr NOBLE FAMILIES
I—1728-1774—JOHN NICKELL (1)
Born in County Tyrone, Ulster, Ireland, near Gortin where (1932) several families of this name are still settled. In 1749 he bought a plantation of 400 acres on Moffett's Branch, Middle River of the Shenandoah in Augusta County Virginia, a Scotch- Irish settlement and about 10 miles northwest of the present city of Staunton, Va. He ;married Barbara McCombe, the daughter of Rebekah Young McCombe and the granddaughter of John Young jr., and they had seven children: John, Thomas, Joseph, Isaac, Robert, Andrew and Elizabeth. His six sons served the cause of American Independence in the Revolution and he was a member of the Expedition to Western Pennsylvania against the French and Indians in 1758. He granted his eldest son John the greater part of the Plantation in Augusta and his other children all settled on the Greenbrier river, then the west- ernmost settlement of the Colonies. He was buried in Augusta County. His third son was:
II—1750-1829—JOSEPH NICKELL (C)
Born January 10, 1750, in Augusta County, Va. In 1774 he was settled on a farm on Second Creek of the Greenbrier river adjacent to his brothers Thomas and Isaac, in what is now Monroe County, West Virginia. He, with his brothers, was in the battle of Point Pleasant in 1774, fought between the Colonial Militia and the Shawnee Indians under Cornstalk—one of the opening engagements of the Revolution, and a victory for the Colonists which opened the Ohio country to settlement. He served in the Revolution in Captain James Henderson's Com- pany of the Virginia Militia from Greenbrier. He married Elizabeth Fowler, the daughter of Robert and Anne Fowler of Augusta and their children were John, Isaac, Big Joseph (who served in the Tenth Kentucky Infantry in the War of 1812), Elizabeth, Lucinda, James, and Mary. In 1788 he sold his farm on Second Creek of the Greenbrier and set out with his family and several related families for Kentucky. They were prevented in crossing the Kentucky river in 1789 by high water and_spent three years on T ate Creek in Madison county, K y . In 1792 he bought a farm on West Fork of Stoner Creek, Bourbon county, later Clark County, Kentucky. He was buried in Montgomery county, Ky., on Lulbegrud Creek. His second son was:
III—1775-1835—ISAAC NICKELL (3C22)
Born 1775 on the Greenbrier in Virginia, reared in Bourbon county, Kentucky. About 1810 he settled near the mouth of White Oak creek on the Licking river in the Southeast part of what is now Morgan county, Ky.,and about 20 miles East of the home of his brother John on Red river. He purchased his farm from the Floyd County Seminary association, acquiring 600 acres of land. He gave the ground for.the first church m Morgan county, founded by his nephew "Preacher Joe" Nickell, at White Oak in 1832. Isaac was one of the first to promote the lumber industry in the county and at one time had 30,000 acres under lease according to the old Morgan county tax rolls. He married Priscilla Jones of Southwest Virginia and their children were William, John Joseph, Fowler, Greenup and a daughter who married Washington Stamper. He was buried on Licking River. His second son was:

IV—1801-1871—JOHN JOSEPH NICKELL (4C363)

Born in 1801, died in 1871. He settled on Devil Fork of the Licking River in Northern Morgan county, Kentucky where he acquired several hundred acres of land. A frequent visitor at his home was his "own" cousin. "Preacher Joe" Nickell. He married Malinda Fugate. the daughter of James Fugate and Ruth Benham Fugate. The Fugates were originally from the Scotch-Irish settlement on the Yadkin in North Carolina and old Preston Fugate was a noted hunter and an early explorer of Big Samlv Vallev in Kentucky. Francis Fugate, a great- uncle, was one of the first settlers in Powells valley of South- west Virginia in 1770 and his home was a refuge of settlers traveling the Wilderness Trail to settle Kentucky and Tennessee. The Benhams were in Virginia as early as 1684. Children of John J. and Malinda Fugate Nickell were Daniel. Ambrose, Alfred W., Greenup, Clarinda, Clarissa, Ruth, Richard French, Priscilla. Mary, Edith. Martha, Francis Marion, and Ellen. He was buried on Devil Fork. His sixth son was:

V—1843-1913—FRANCIS MARION NICKELL (5C986)

Born in 1843 on Devil Fork of the Licking river, Morgan county, Kentucky. He was named after the great Revolutionary patriot Francis Marion. When 19 years of age, and while serving m the Union army in the Civil War, he married at Paducah, Ky., Dorothy Ellington, a belle of Morgan county. The Ellingtons were of Scotch origin, James Ellington, the second of record in Virginia, being one of the first prominent dissenting ministers of old Loudoun parish, Va. Children of this Ellington family were named Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, Samuel, David and Joseph. David served three years in the Virginia Line in the Revolution as a Sergeant, and lived until 1840. John Ellington, the father of Dorothy, married Mary DeWitte of the Heugenot DeWittes of Virginia, several of this family being prominent among the pioneers of Kentucky. Francis Marion Nickell emigrated to Missouri before the close of the Civil war but a few years later, in 1873, he moved again, purchasing a large farm in Linn county, Kansas. In the early 80s he again started westward and settled in Los Angeles county, California, thus completing, in five generations, by progressive pioneer settlements, the cross- ing of this continent by this family. In Los Angeles Francis M Nickell was a prominent city builder and contractor in the early development of that city, was a member of the city council, and active in civic affairs. He died in 1913 and was buried in Roselawn cemetery, Los Angeles. Children of Francis M. and Dorothy Ellington Nickell were Alice Rachel (Coonradt), George Henry, Howard Bruce, and Ella (Renner). His eldest son was:

VI—1866—GEORGE HENRY NICKELL

Born March 9, 1866 in Breckenridge county. Mo., George Henry ("Joe") Nickell was reared in Linn county, Kansas. He entered railway employment as a young man and his steadfast purpose and ability are attested by the fact that he has been 40 years in the employ of the Missouri-Kansas and Texas Railway Co., and on several occasions has been elected to positions of leader- shin by his fellow employes. CHRONOLOGICAL GENEALOGY

Descendents of JOHN (I) NICKELL, the immigrant from Ire- land who settled in Virginia in 1749. He married Barbara McCombe. Their children were born in Augusta county, their six sons all hav- ing served the cause of American Independence in the Revolution. These Revolutionary patriots of the second generation of Nickells in America are each designated by a Letter and in the system of numbering herein these letters are carried throughout the list of descendents to indicate the descending branch of the family. The number of the generation, starting with the immigrant as the first in America, precedes the descending branch Letter, following which is the genealogical number of the descendent. Male descendents bearing the surname NICKELL are in capitals. The person married in each case is in parenthesis. Dates enclosed in parenthesis indi- cate the marriage date. Date of birth and death is indicated by a date preceded by a small letter b or letter d (b-) (d-).

THE TWO PANTHERS
The story of the two Panthers is one of those family traditions which reveals the condition of the country, character of the people and fixes the time of early settlement as well as the relationship of our ancestors.
"When Black John Nickell explored the upper waters of Red River in Eastern Kentucky there were no habitations there. He had his two eldest sons, Preacher Joe and Big Andy, 10 and 8 years of age, with him. He found a likely spot for a homesite, a broad grassy valley with good timber on the river and decided to return to Clark county for his family. He threw up a leanto hut of boughs for tha boys and left them with their dog. The first afternoon o£ their stay two young panthers came down to the river to drink. The dog fought one for some time and finally killed it, the other panther re- maining nearby but not taking any part in the fight. Then the dog rested an hour or so, swam in the river, came out and tackled the remaining panther. He finally killed it but the dog died that evening from wounds received in the fight, leaving the two boys alone in the wilderness. The boys were alone two days and nights but were safe and sound when Black John returned the morning of the third day.'
Preacher Joe was born in 1792, thus we can fix the time for first aettlement of Morgan county at 1802.
